

ABSTRACT

A method for planning a restructuring of at least two organizations includes a first interface adapted to allow a user to plan a project with a resource management capability and a time management capability, a second interface adapted to provide collaborative capabilities to restructuring members to plan the project, and one or more tools adapted to allow a user to exchange restructuring information with a person associated with one of the organizations.

10

20766698.doc